

AMENDMENTS TO THE SPECIFICATION

A. Please replace the paragraph beginning at line 28 of page 4 with the following paragraph:

In yet another embodiment of the present invention, determining the suitability of the client computer for receiving the plug-in application may include determining whether the number of times the client computer has accessed the web site is under a predetermined threshold number. In a further embodiment, another page of the web site may be displayed on the client computer if the client computer is determined to be unsuitable for receiving the plug-in application. In an additional embodiment, a license agreement may be displayed on the client computer to the user prior to the downloading of the plug-in application. In even a further embodiment, the determination of the suitability of the client computer for receiving the plug-in application may be carried out by another web site. In another embodiment, the page of the web site launches a window which initiates the determination of the suitability of the client computer for receiving the plug-in application.